

Neil Jeffares, Dictionary of pastellists before 1800

Online edition

DUPARC, Françoise-Marthe-Thérèse

Murcia, Spain 15.X.1726 – Marseille 11.X.1778
Françoise Duparc (the additional forenames Marthe Thérèse at baptism seem never to appear later) was the daughter of the architect and sculptor Antoine Duparc of Marseille, a cousin of the pastellist Pierre Bernard (q.v.). She was admitted to the Académie de Marseille in 1776. She died and was buried in the parish of Saint-Ferreol the next day. According to Achard, she travelled to London after the death of Jean-Baptiste Van Loo; a portrait of the 1st Earl of Harrington (–1756), engraved by M. Ford, is cited – but this seems to be after Barthélemy du Pan (q.v.). The only evidence of her being a pastellist is if she is to be identified with the 1766 London exhibitor Mrs Du Parc (Society of Artists), for which the evidence seems unconvincing (v. Mme du Parc, La Francesina); although she might well be the “Mrs Du Part” [sic] who exhibited three paintings from a different address, at the Free Society in 1763 (one of which might correspond with a lost picture listed in Françoise Duparc’s will). Alastair Laing (email 2018) has suggested a plausible, if tentative, attribution of a pastel once given to Liotard.

Bibliography

[Claude-François Achard], Dictionnaire de la Provence et du Comté-Venaisien, Marseille, 1786, pp. 583–84; Alauzen 1962; Billioud 1938; Dussieux 1856, p. 144; Luc Georget, “Une académicienne. Françoise Duparc”, in Marseille 2016, pp. 186–89; Greer 2001; Jamie Mulherron, review of Marseille exhibition, Burlington magazine, .XI.2016, pp. 921–23; Saur; Toledo 1975; Voiriot 2024

GENEALOGIES Bernard

Pastels

J.2895.201 [olim J.9.515] Jeune femme brodant, pstl, 65x50 (Louvre inv. REC 128. ?Adolf Wuester. Acqu. Städtische Kunstsammlungen, Düsseldorf, RM25,000; restitué 1948; Louvre 1951). Exh.: Paris 1965b, no. 89, as by Liotard; Paris 1997a. Lit.: R&L R75 [?A/r Liotard]; Salmon 2018, p. 316f repr. φασ

