HENRI, Nicolas

fl Toulouse 1772; Bordeaux 1773–80; France
1791

The Henri who exhibited as a peintre étranger in the Salons de Toulouse of 1772 and 1773 is probably the Henry who was agr   at the Acad  mie de Bordeaux, 1773, peintre en miniature; he exhibited at the salons de Bordeaux and also at the Salon du Colis  e, Paris, 1776. An advertisement in the Annonces, affiches et avis divers ... de Bordeaux (24.IX.1772) announced—

M. Henri, Artiste, nouvellement arriv   dans cette Ville, fait savoir au public qu'il peint le portrait en mignature & au pastel; il fixe les portraits au pastel sur la soie. On verra de ses Ouvrages chez lui, & on jugera de la ressemblance de ses portraits par ceux qu'il a commenc  s dans ce pays. Il est log   chez M. Lajeunesse, Tailleur, rue porte-Dijaux, pr  s le Gouvernement.

In the Almanach des peintres of 1777 (p. 113) he is noted as having moved from Bordeaux to Paris, rue Pl  tri  re. He exhibited also in Salon de la Correspondance of 1779. Some works are in private collections in the south of France. Mesuret gives his forename as Nicolas (perhaps an unwarranted inference from Marionneau's N Henry) but suggests tentatively that he may be the same as the miniaturist Michel Henri nominated adjoint    professeur at the Acad  mie de Marseille in 1786.

Whether he is the author of a group of pastels signed Henry, Hany, Hary or Hony or Beury, but not Barry or Huet (q.v.) to whom some of the pastels were previously attributed, is uncertain. The pastel in Nice is evidently by the same hand. The neat handling and upturned mouth are similar to the features in a miniature in the Louvre (of the girondin Barbaroux, inv. RF 1740, c.1789) signed "Henry", but that is also close to the oval pastel signed "J B Henry" (q.v.) which does not seem to be by the same hand.

Among other homonyms, a Bon-Thomas Henry (Cherbourg 1766 – Paris 1836) is too young. It is unlikely too that the "Henry,   l  ve de Regnault et de Landon, quai de l'Ecole, no. 14", who exhibited portrait drawings at the salons from 1798 was the pastelist; by 1800 he was "Henry, de Versailles, rue neuve des Petits-Champs"; he was perhaps the "Henry, [peintre] en miniature, professeur de dessin", at 28 rue de Thionville in the Almanach du commerce de Paris, 1811. A Claude Henry, peintre, aged 26, from Paris, was living at 8 rue Saint-  tienne, on 18.VII.1793 (carte de s  ret  ).
