JUEL, Jens Jørgensen

Fünen 12.V.1745 – Copenhagen 27.XII.1802

A pupil of Gehrman in Hamburg until 1765, he returned to the Danish Kunstakademi where he studied under Mandelberg and was influenced by Pilo and Tocqué. In 1772 he left Denmark, and travelled to Italy (1772), Hamburg (1773), Dresden (1773–74, where he worked with Anton Graff), Rome (1774–76, Batoni), Naples, Paris (1776), Geneva (1777, where he stayed with the naturalist Charles Bonnet) and Kassel (1779), returning to Copenhagen as court painter in 1780.

Juel developed Danish portraiture far beyond the limits of Als (q.v.). Some of his best works in pastel (which with few exceptions all date from the 1790s) are his forward-looking depictions of children, with a naturalism that contrasts strikingly with contemporary work in the French school; the technique is also superb. Characteristically, the sphericity and liquidity of eyes are given particular emphasis in Juel's portraits, whether in oil or pastel.
