KAUFFMAN, Angelica

Chur, Switzerland 30.X.1741 – Rome 5.XI.1807
Maria Anna Angelika Catharina Kauffmann, or Angelica Kauffman in English sources (and as she often signed), Mme Zucchi; daughter of Johann Joseph Kauffmann (q.v.). Her talent for portraiture became evident at an early age. She followed her father to Florence (she was made a member of the Accademia del Disegno in 1762, at the age of 21), Rome (where she was accepted by the Accademia di San Luca two years later) and Venice before settling in London and becoming a founder member of the Royal Academy in 1768. A disastrous marriage (1767) with an adventurer calling himself Count de Horn turned out to be bigamous; later she was to marry the decorative painter Antonio Zucchi. In 1781 she moved to Rome where she remained until her death. Her portrait and subject paintings in the neo-classical style attracted great popularity and she was engaged by royal families throughout Europe.

Although she is said to have used pastel as a child, this may well be based on an error in de Rossi's Vita, where he suggests that she made a pastel of bishop Nevroni in 1752; this is perhaps to be identified with the red and black chalk drawing of him in the sacristy of the Cappuccini in Lugano, signed and dated 1755. In any case, if she used pastel at all, she rapidly abandoned the medium as unsuited for her ambitions. A printed schedule, from 1788, gives her prices for six types of picture, including three sizes of portrait (40 sequins for one without hands, rising to 220 for a whole length); there is no suggestion that she might work in pastel. She must have seen works such as Perronneau's Laurent Cars, perhaps on her brief stay in Paris in 1766, since she seems to have borrowed the pose in the oil painting of her father. See says that her pastels were influenced by Carriera, but show a Germanic sweetness and insipidity; he claims that her output was not inconsiderable; but the example he catalogued in a 1927 sale looks rather doubtful. Apart from numerous drawings, some with coloured chalks (for example, in the British Museum or Berlin), we have found few true pastels that can safely be attributed to her (an exception being the receipted portrait from Lady Brownlow, possibly commissioned to complete a series of pastels started by Katherine Read); however the vogue for her work must have tempted copyists.
