PETHER, William

Carlisle 1731 – Bristol 1819

Pupil, and later partner, of Thomas Frye (q.v.); best known for his mezzotint engravings, many after Joseph Wright of Derby, with whom Pether shared an interest in scientific matters. One engraving was after a pastel by Russell (a Bacchante of 1791). He also worked in miniature, oil and crayon. He exhibited at the Free Society (1761–63), the Society of Artists (1764–80), and the Royal Academy (1781–94, from 12 Frith Street, 32 Oxendon Street and 148 Sloane Street).

While some sources put Pether's death in 1795, the Jones pastel is dated two years later. It is one of only a few examples of Pether's pastels to have survived, but demonstrates a limited, almost monochrome palette, and softly rounded drawing which is likely to be typical of Pether's own creations. As an engraver however his copies after his sources are likely to have been more precisely drawn. One monochrome pastel, of Wright of Derby himself, is inscribed on the stretcher "Joseph Wright of Derby copied by Wm Pether", which has led it to be catalogued as by Pether from 1868 on; however it is in an identical technique to Wright's own monochrome pastels, is lit from the right as are his other self-portraits, and is far beyond the level Pether ever achieved. The inscription is likely to refer to a lost copy or print.
