

Neil Jeffares, Dictionary of pastellists before 1800

Online edition

WARD, James

London 1769 – Cheshunt 1859

James Ward started his career as a pupil of J. R. Smith and then of his older brother William Ward (q.v.). He exhibited two pastels in 1790 from Warren Place, near Kentish Town. He was later to have a successful career at the Royal Academy (exhibiting from 1792, becoming a full member in 1811) as an animal, genre, history and portrait painter, draughtsman, watercolourist and engraver.

Bibliography

Bénézit; New Haven 1979; Waterhouse 1981

Pastels

Boy, crayons, Society of Artists 1790, no. 333

Lady, crayons, Society of Artists 1790, no. 332